

Altman Technologies and RM encourage schools to “Think before you Print”

Technology solutions specialists Altman Technologies are pleased to announce the signing of an agreement with RM, the leading supplier of ICT to UK education. The agreement will provide RM customers with Altman Technologies’ print and copy management solutions to deliver a more sophisticated level of cost control and accountability than has previously been available.

Print management has become an increasingly important issue for all educational establishments from primary schools to further and higher education. Most students and staff now have access to computers, the internet and printing resources of some type. Typically, use of printers and copiers is not accounted for and is often unrestricted, leading to massive increases in expenditure on paper and toner.

Altman Technologies’ print and copy management solutions provide RM customers with monitoring, accounting, cost control and reporting of all printed output, with cost recovery capabilities - ideal for all staff and student environments. Unique configuration options enable waste and misuse of print consumables to be eliminated which helps achieve environmental compliance and typically delivers tangible savings of 25% to 50% - this usually translates to significant sums of money for most educational organisations.

Mark Altman, managing director of Altman Technologies, said:

“We are delighted to be working with RM. Our approach to print cost savings will help RM add further value to their solution and deliver tangible benefits to their customers”.

Altman Technologies have been given the National Green Champion Award in recognition of their print and copy management software solution that encourages you to “think before you print”. This fits with RM’s environmental focus perfectly as RM is committed to an ongoing programme of improvement to minimise environmental impact.
