

Altman Technologies Celebrates 20 Years in Business

Altman Technologies are providing some very good news during these turbulent economic times, the company is celebrating their 20th year of business, a real landmark in their history and given the current economic climate an achievement to be very proud of.

Altman Technologies was originally formed as Altman & Associates in 1988 by Mark Altman, as a supplier of system management software. Since then the business has evolved and expanded steadily. Altman Technologies now distribute software solutions covering Enterprise Print and Copy Management, Managed Email and Web Protection, Auditing, Security and Surveillance as well as Active Directory and eDirectory Management.

The Altman Technologies business model is based on integrity, credibility and stability to deliver excellent value with an ethical approach to business. This model had encouraged steady and consistent business growth, allowing continued investment in the business without incurring debt.

During their 20th anniversary year Altman Technologies have been presented with a Green Hero 2008 award in recognition of their Pcounter Intelligent Print and Copy Management software solution that encourages you to "think before you print". The trophy was presented in June by top botanist and TV personality David Bellamy OBE at the Tower of London.

Mark Altman, company CEO commented "We are delighted to be celebrating our 20th birthday and look forward to meeting the challenges and changes that the next 20 years will no doubt bring. Winning the Green Hero 2008 award has been the icing on the cake."
